

Beyoncé and Jay-Z just dropped their first joint-album, 'Everything is Love'

With no warning or promotion, Beyoncé and Jay-Z have released their first joint album, 'Everything is Love.'

They surprised everyone and announced it on stage at their 'On the Run II' concert in London on Saturday, where screens suddenly projected the message "album out now". This surprise announcement sent fans into a tizzy.

The nine-track album portrays the couple in a happy marriage but confirms that they had some trouble. Jay-Z raps-

"We broke up and got back together." "We came and we conquered/ Now we're happy in love."

This album has been released through Tidal, the streaming service co-owned by Jay-Z.
